Noeth denies pressuring employee

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

A Granite City school board member, accused of attempting to use "strong-arm tactics" with a school district employee in an attempt to ensure the promotion of a relative, strongly denies the allegation.

Jim Noeth, school district treasurer, is alleged to have asked Brad Eavenson, director of food services, to use his influence with board president Mark Eavenson, Brad Eavenson's brother, to ensure that a relative of Noeth's be promoted to the position of Chapter 1 director.

Noeth, who is active in the Madison County Democratic organization, is reported to have told Brad Eavenson that "I will be around for a long time" and then pointed out that Brad Eavenson serves at the pleasure of the board.

Noeth called the allegation "just bull" and said "incidents in the cafeteria" are the only thing he has ever talked to Brad Eavenson about, other than "to tell him he is doing a good job."

Noeth said the allegation sounds like "somebody is trying to get something started."

Mark Eavenson, while confirming "in general" that the incident had taken place, declined to comment on the matter, referring all questions to Superintendent of Schools Gib Walmsley.

Walmsley said several board members had reported the incident to him and asked him to investigate the incident and to investigate the board's options should reports of the incident prove founded.

"Frankly, I was appalled to think something like this could happen," Walmsley said.

"The board members who spoke to me were very upset. They were talking about taking some sort of action."

After an investigation, however, Walmsley said he discovered there were apparently no witnesses to the alleged incident and, as a result, he felt it could not be positively confirmed.

Noeth said Walmsley is aggravated because Noeth was one of the people who refused to raise Walmsley's salary to match that Walmsley will receive in

for labor support
Flu bug cancels steel mill tourBy Mike Chambers
Staff writer

U.S. Senate hopeful Carol Moseley Braun, bitten by the flu bug the night before, canceled her intended tour of the Granite City Steel mill Friday but kept appointments with local Democratic and union leaders.

Braun shook hands with a group of approximately 20 people, mostly local union leaders and members, at 10 a.m. in the lobby of Granite City Steel, 20th and State streets, before she went upstairs to be checked by a nurse.

"I came here to let everybody know that I'm near the phone and in constant contact with supporters here. My job is to work for the people of this area and to be a public servant," Braun told a handful of supporters and a few reporters.

David Eichenbaum, a Braun aide, said she plans to travel back to Chicago and take "a few days off" to cure her illness.

Eichenbaum attributed the illness to her hectic campaign schedule. "She's been going at it nonstop for three days," he said. Earlier in the morning, Braun met with local Democratic leaders at a breakfast engagement, asking for their support to defeat Republican candidate Richard Williamson in the November election.

In a brief statement before leaving, Braun, an elected Cook County official, said she had been promised support by local Democrats and urged union supporters to join her campaign.

All the union members gathered in the lobby apparently had already pledged their support.

Paul Neushawm, an employee of Granite City Steel and a member of United Steelworkers local 67, said he is active in fund raising for Braun "because I believe she would be a good friend of labor. She has been in the past."

Another Granite City Steel worker who pledged to support Braun, William Rains, said he voted for Braun in the March primary election because "Mr. (Sen. Alan) Dixon wasn't doing his job. We elected him to be a Democrat and he wasn't doing what I felt he should be doing for Democrats."

Braun's primary upset of two-term incumbent Dixon came after only limited campaigning in southern and central Illinois. But she pledged to campaign more intensely in this area as the fall election comes closer.

Local 67 President David Dowling said he plans to work actively to get local residents out to polls in November.

"Money is important to a campaign, but votes are more important," Dowling said. "There's going to be a real need for grassroots support (of Braun) in this race."

Democrats urge party unity

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Neither fever nor a splitting headache will keep Carol Moseley Braun from the campaign trail — if her appearance at the Collinsville Holiday Inn on Friday is any indication.

Braun, who shocked the political establishment by defeating long-time U.S. Sen. Al Dixon of Belleville in April's Democratic primary, spoke briefly to about 50 party bigwigs from St. Clair and Madison counties on Friday despite feeling very much under the weather.

"If anybody tells you I don't care about downstate, I've got to tell you I'm here sick to my stomach, with a splitting headache," she said. "I feel like I have an ax in my head, and I took a puddle-jumper flight down from Chicago."

But, she said, she had kept her date because, "this is a serious business."

While many of those in attendance were long-time friends and supporters of Dixon, several stressed the need for the party to unite behind

Plan would aid steel firms
Costello resolution urges trade agreementBy Mike Chambers
Staff writer

A proposed resolution introduced Tuesday by U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, has the intent of aiding American steel-makers like National Steel in fighting "unfair foreign steel trade."

Costello said Thursday he is seeking co-sponsors for the resolution, which calls on the Bush administration to reach a multilateral steel trade agreement with foreign countries on the sale of steel to American manufacturers.

It also calls for the Commerce Department and the International Trade Commission to enforce current U.S. trade laws on companies in this country buying subsidized steel abroad.

"I hope we can get the administration to support this resolution for the good of the U.S. steel industry," Costello said in a telephone interview from Washington.

Costello said the Bush administration in many instances has turned a blind eye to foreign exporters flooding the U.S. market with cheap steel. He noted that voluntary restraint agreements initiated in 1984 expired in March 1992.

"It is impossible for the U.S. steel industry to compete with foreign markets that subsidize their steel. We do not have a level playing field," Costello said.

A spokesman for National Steel, which employs about 3,500 at its Granite City Steel division, echoed Costello's sentiments.

"Basically, the position of the industry is united," said Bob Toothman from National Steel's office in Pittsburgh. "We feel we've made great strides in the past four to five years. We are

Jerry Costello to a point now where we are saying, 'We can compete, as long as it's on a level plain.' (See TRADE, Page 13A)

Partney: 'I was asleep at wheel'

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Granite City Alderman Dan Partney said Wednesday that he has "real concerns" about the City Council's procedure in granting Elicam permission to locate a plant here, but said he has no one to blame but himself.

"I was at the public hearing (in 1989), I voted for the ordinance (granting Elicam permission to locate at the site), but now I realize I didn't know what I was doing," Partney said after Wednesday's City Council meeting.

"I was asleep at the wheel. I admit that. It was my responsibility to know what was being voted on and I didn't."

Elicam plans to build and operate a hazardous-waste treatment facility on the west side of Illinois, about three-quarters of a mile north of Rock Road.

The proposed plant was the subject of a public hearing Tuesday night conducted by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

The IEPA is responsible to see that the facility and process meet safety criteria.

But the responsibility for ensuring the safety of the site itself is the responsibility of the city. The ordinance granting permission for the site certifies that Elicam has met the technical safety criteria established by the IEPA for a hazardous-waste facility.

Although an engineering study concerning the site and its suitability for the plant was conducted (See ETCAM, Page 13A)

House OKs radar detector ban

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation banning the use of radar detectors by commercial truckers has sped through the Illinois House and is routing to the Senate.

The detectors could be seized by police and a $50 fine for a first offense and $250 fine for additional offenses would be imposed under the bill.

The measure easily passed the House on a 82-30 vote with virtually no debate.

The legislation was recommended by a truck safety task force appointed by Secretary of State George Ryan, who lobbied for the bill's passage. The task force included trucking industry representatives.

"There's absolutely no reason to own a radar detector except to elude police radar and break speeding laws," Ryan contended.

He also said large speeding trucks pose hazards to passenger cars on the highways.

The legislation would require interstate truck drivers to disconnect their detectors and lock them in outside compartments while driving through Illinois to avoid being cited under the ban.

Prison term for Ashburn; murder probe continuing

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Madison County officials are hoping that the sentencing of a Pontoon Beach man to prison may breathe new life into the investigation of a Granite City man's murder.

John Ashburn, 39, already sentenced to eight years in prison on weapons charges, received an additional five-year sentence Thursday from Madison County Circuit Judge Charles V. Romani Jr. on an additional weapon charge.

The charge stems from a July 17, 1991, incident in which Ashburn was carrying a .22-caliber revolver in his pocket while at Ralph and Charlie's Steak House in Pontoon Beach.

With Ashburn behind bars, prosecutors hope that witnesses — allegedly terrorized by Ashburn before he was jailed last July — may come forward with new information on the 1990 death of Ricky Muckensturm, 32.

"That's certainly something to hope for," said Madison County State's Attorney William Haine. "We made a commitment to prosecute (the case) with vigor and we're very pleased about it."

Ashburn was charged with first-degree murder in September 1990 for Muckensturm's death but a St. Clair County grand jury ordered the charge dropped a month later after it found insufficient evidence to indict Ashburn.

Because Muckensturm's body was found in East St. Louis, the investigation of his murder remains in St. Clair County. But if evidence can confirm that Muckensturm was killed in Madison County, the investigation could come to officials here.

"There's always a chance that could happen," Haine said, adding that he had discussed the possibility with St. Clair County State's Attorney Robert Haida.

"We're well aware that could change, but right now the venue is St. Clair County and that's where it remains."

Rand Hale, who defended Ashburn during Thursday's hearing, argued that it was inappropriate for the court to consider testimony from Ashburn's sentencing hearing last year, some of which involved Muckensturm.

Hale said admission of those transcripts was an "attempt by innuendo to get a long sentence," and accused Assistant State's Attorney Craig Jensen of "eloquent waxing."

Jensen had argued that Ashburn was a "violent criminal" who had "demonstrated absolutely no rehabilitative potential."

Jensen cited two previous convictions of Ashburn for violent crimes.

In one case, Ashburn beat another man with a shotgun. And in the other, Ashburn attacked a man with a six-inch hunting knife.

The knife victim, who lost 10 feet of his intestinal tract, almost died, Jensen said.

Mayors upset by Edgar tax plan

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

Local mayors are angry about Governor Jim Edgar's proposal to keep special surcharge revenues to help balance the state budget and they got together Thursday in Belleville to let him know about it.

The Southwestern Illinois Conference of Mayors also drafted a letter to Edgar Wednesday asking Edgar to reconsider his proposal because of the devastating effect it could have on local programs and services.

School districts and municipalities have been sharing the tax for several years, but Edgar proposed April 7 that the surcharge be made permanent and that cities be written out of the tax completely.

"We told our constituents that the surcharge would help local schools and municipalities and now the state wants it," said O'Fallon Mayor Kristi Vetri. "If those agencies are not going to get it, then he should give it back to the people. He's trying to pull the wool over people's eyes."

Most mayors at the conference said their cities have used the monies for capital improvements and one-time purchases such as police cars because the tax has always been a temporary measure.

However, they said services like sidewalk and street repair and building projects will be put on hold if the tax is diverted from city coffers.

Belleville Mayor Richard Brauer said many cities learned after handling the federal revenue sharing program for so long that they should not depend on the funds.

"A lot of projects that need to be done will not be done (without the surcharge) unless we raise taxes," he said. "Our fiscal year 1993 budgets have already been planned, but the governor dropped this bombshell."

"We know the governor has some great concerns in balancing his budget, but it should not be done on the backs of local municipalities," he added.

Belleville receives about $800,000 a year in surcharge funds, Brauer said. The funds are distributed at a rate of $20.60 per person in each city, he added.

Greg Sparrow, mayor of DeKalb and chairman of the Illinois Municipal League's effort to stop Edgar's plan, said municipalities agreed to share some of the surcharge with the state in 1991.

At that time, an agreement was struck with the state, but now Edgar has made up his mind without even consulting municipalities, he said.

"It doesn't make sense for the state to be battling local governments. We should be working together. I thought we had that last year on the surcharge," Sparrow said.

Jake Johnson, who represented Fairview Heights Mayor George Lannan, said loss of the funds would be devastating for most communities.

Fairview Heights receives about $300,000 annually in surcharge revenues — about one percent of the city budget. But Johnson said so much of the budget is committed to employee taxes and wages that there is little "flexible budget" left over for other projects.

"What's going to happen next year," Johnson said. "Come 1993, we could be in real trouble."

Centerville Mayor John Robinson said he feared the loss of surcharge monies would force his city to raise what is already one of the highest tax rates in the state.

"We're just asking the governor to keep his promise to us," he said.

Golf course restaurant to open

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Every summer for 30 or more years, Wilbert and Georgia Engelke hired college and high school students to work on their vegetable farm just outside Granite City.

The farm is gone now. In its place is Wilbert Engelke's legacy, the Legacy Golf Course operated by his sons, Jim and Bill Engelke.

"And now we have the next generation of students working here (at the golf course, pro shop and restaurant)," Georgia Engelke said. "I'm very proud of that. It would have pleased Wilbert."

On Monday, the clubhouse restaurant — Jerry's on the Green — will open.

Seating approximately 100 people, it will be open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week, offering a full-service bar and full menu.

"We're offering a lot of appetizer-type foods like toasted ravioli, burritos, nachos and things like that," said Jon Roderick, food and beverage manager. "Things to sit down and eat after playing golf."

"But you don't have to play golf to come here. Although the menu is somewhat limited (16 entrees), it offers a wide variety and we've got something for everyone."

With the exception of large parties or banquets, no reservations are required. For more information, call 931-FOOD.

About 13,000 rounds of golf have been played on the 18-hole course since the first of the year, according to Garry Henson, golf service director. Even before the grass set in in the fairways, the course was rated as one of the best golf courses in the St. Louis area. This year, it is rated among the top 10 public courses.

"Greens and tee-boxes make the difference," Henson said. "Golfers will play in a cow pasture otherwise, but the game is determined by the tee-boxes and greens and we have the very best in the area."

He said that as many as half of Legacy's golfers come from Missouri and that the course draws from across Illinois as well.

The course opens at 6 a.m. and closes approximately one hour before sundown. Tee times are required. For more information or to make a reservation call 931-GOLF.

Sandy Engelke, Legacy manager, and her husband, Bill Engelke, have worked at the course almost every day since it opened in 1990. She said the course will remain a public course.

"Most of the leagues now playing at the course are 'blue collar golfers,'" she said. "Our idea had always been to make one of the very best golf courses anywhere available to the average person."

Lots in the Legacy subdivision, which is intertwined with the golf course, are selling fast, Georgia Engelke said, and "houses keep springing up."

There is even one young couple who come out in the evening and sit in lawn chairs on their lot," she said.

Georgia Engelke said that, from the time she and Wilbert first talked about turning the farm into a golf course subdivision, she knew that someday it would be built.

"I just had faith and believed it," she said. "There were times, especially after Wilbert's death (in 1989), I might have been the only one, but I always knew it would be built."

"Then the boys came in and picked it up and, now, look at it. I know Wilbert is pleased and proud."

Horse show to aid St. Jude Hospital

By John J. Winkelman
Staff writer

A lot of horsing around in Troy is planned June 7 to help St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The Gateway Racking Horse Association will hold a 13-class horse show and a Wild West show, "The Three Guardsmen," at its new facilities on Old Staunton Road at Silver Creek.

The pleasure class horse show begins at 11 a.m. with ribbons awarded to the top five places in each class. The "good guys and bad guys" show begins at 3 p.m. Admission is $2 per person.

The Wild West show is the result of a little bit of boredom and the childhood dream of event co-sponsor Terry Crowder, owner of Crowder's Jewelry in Florissant, Mo.

"Three or four guys were standing around at the farm where we were trail riding and just having fun, but we got a little bored," Crowder said. "So we decided we'd play cowboys — that's basically how this all started."

The play is based on real people and events from the old West in an authentic old-West town, said Charles Dew, president of the Gateway Racking Horse Association.

"It's a true story about three U.S. marshals sent to clean up this old town," Dew said. The story includes Billy the Kid and Pat Garrett. "It's the life and death of some of these big name outlaws and marshals."

Jean Deckard said she plays a storekeeper and her husband Bob plays a marshal. "He gets killed right away and we have to drag him to the funeral home," Jean Deckard said.

"They shoot off between 200 and 300 rounds, blanks. There are six or seven saloon girls in pretty costumes," Jean Deckard said. "The people who are in it, we really have a good time. I always base my character like Mrs. Olson on Little House on the Prairie."

"The kids just absolutely love this thing," Crowder said. "There is something for everyone in this live play including action, romance and gunfight adventures."

Dew said the day's events will include pony rides, a small animal petting farm, mechanical bull riding, old-time picture booths, game booths, crafts, food and refreshments. The horse show is open to anyone who shows up with a horse he or she would like to show in one of the 13 classes.

The new horse show ring is also something members of the Gateway Racking Horse Association are proud of. Dew said the 10-acre tract was recently cleared and all the construction of the ring and old town has been completed by members and volunteers.

"It looks like a park, thanks to a lot of hard work," Dew said. "We're trying to set up a family fun day," Dew said. "Something for everyone to have fun, plus show our new arena and help out a good cause."

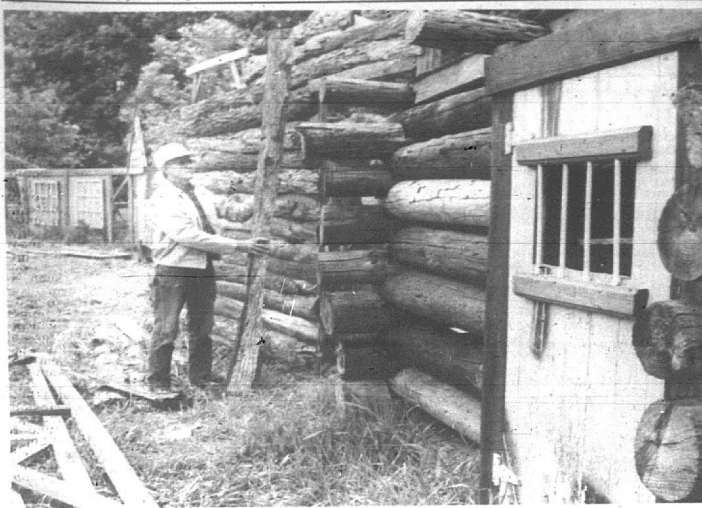

"Everybody has a soft spot for children — most have children or grandchildren."

St. Jude Hospital was founded in 1962 by Danny Thomas and is the largest childhood cancer research, treatment and educational center in America. Although it is located in Memphis, the hospital assists area doctors and hospitals who use treatments and procedures developed there.

"St. Jude is probably one of the finest places that anybody could donate anything to," Crowder said. "They are there for one reason and that is to heal kids and that's what this event is all about."

Anyone who would like to have a display booth or other item to add to the day's activities is asked to call Dew at 667-6994 or Bob Deckard at 881-5586.

(Some information for this story provided by staff writer Dennis R. Heinze.)

Helmet law gets panel's attention

SPRINGFIELD — A resolution urging Congress not to punish states that let motorcyclists ride without helmets is on its way to the Illinois Senate.

The Senate Executive Committee voted 9-4 Wednesday to urge repeal of a law that transfers federal highway money to road safety programs if states don't require helmets by 1993.

"It is asking Congress not to infringe on our rights," resolution sponsor Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chicago, said.

Both chambers must approve the joint resolution, but it does not carry the force of law.

The resolution states that the "regulation of traffic and motor-vehicle safety laws is constitutionally the province of state, not congressional, authority."

The resolution says the goals of the federal mandate, such as reducing fatalities and injuries through helmets, are praiseworthy, but such legislation "would be a blatant transgression upon the states' regulatory authority."

Supporters of a bill to require helmets on all Illinois cyclists have said they plan to wait until after the November elections to begin pushing the issue in earnest. Senators said there were not enough votes in that chamber to pass the measure now.

Special Census survey to begin Monday

Local representatives of the U.S. Census Bureau will visit selected area households beginning June 1 to conduct its Survey of Income and Program Participation, Marvin L. Postma, director of the bureau's Kansas, City regional office, announced.

SIPP is continuing nationwide survey introduced in the fall of 1983. It is one of the nation's largest, with about 60,000 households participating.

The Census Bureau publishes periodic reports with information from the survey. Subjects covered include the following:

- Jobs and earnings
- The economic effects of unemployment, disability and retirement
- How taxes affect personal spending
- Participation in programs such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps and pension plans.

Information from SIPP helps policy makers and administrators determine how well government programs are serving the public and how changes in programs and policies will affect the public.

Here are some facts about persons starting new jobs between 1987 and 1989, based on findings from the survey. (The sample size limits accurate reporting to national figures only):

- Seventy-six percent of the jobs people entered between 1987 and 1989 were in service-producing industries.

- Thirty-four percent of total jobs were in the high-paying service-producing industries such as finance, insurance and real estate. In addition, 24 percent of the jobs created between 1987 and 1989 were in the traditional high-paying goods-producing industries, such as manufacturing.

- Young people aged 16 to 24 accounted for 42 percent of all the persons starting jobs during this time. Women represented 55 percent of the total. Both groups were more likely than others to enter jobs in the low-paying service-producing industries.

- The average hourly rate of pay for all persons entering hourly paid jobs between 1987 and 1989 was $5.63. For men aged 25 to 54 who entered such jobs the average was $8.06 and the comparable figure for women of the same age was $5.55.

- The average weekly earnings for all persons entering non-hourly paid jobs was $336. The average for men aged 25 to 54 who entered such jobs was $490.

House GOP would abolish board that recommends pay adjustments

A group of Illinois House Republicans will seek to abolish the state Compensation Review Board for recommending big raises for state officials.

"In times of financial crisis, the Compensation Review Board has repeatedly ignored the pressing needs of state government while recommending obscene salary increases for state officials," Rep. Tim Johnson, R-Urbana, said.

Johnson and several other GOP lawmakers, including Rep. Tom Ryder, R-Jerseyville, said they would attempt to attach legislation abolishing the board to some pending bill before the spring legislative session ends.

Johnson also complained his bill to abolish the automatic cost-of-living increases the officials receive was held by Democrats in the Rules Committee and not considered.

Meanwhile, a Senate vote on

"In times of financial crisis, the Compensation Review Board has repeatedly ignored the pressing needs of state government while recommending obscene salary increases for state officials."

— Tim Johnson

whether to reject the 14.5 percent pay hikes recommended by the board for lawmakers, judges and other top state officials has been put off until at least next week.

Senate President Philip Rock noted senators have 30 legislative session days, instead of calendar days, before the raises automatically take effect.

So far, 14 session days have been used since the board issued its report on April 30. The House voted -113-2 that same day to reject the recommendations. Both chambers of the Legislature must reject a report to block it from taking effect, however.

Based on the current legislative schedule, the deadline for the Senate to act is not until June 26. Rock indicated the matter could be called for a vote next week.

Apprenticeships are available

Applications for inside wireman apprenticeships will be accepted during July, August and September at the Electrical Workers Hall, 200 Mall St. (Illinois 157), Collinsville, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Apprenticeship positions are open to both sexes. The five-year program jointly sponsored by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the National Electrical Contractors Association provides a minimum of 160 hours of nighttime classroom instruction per year, requiring extensive use of mathematics, plus a total of 8,000 hours of on-the-job training.

Applicants must be at least 18 years of age.

Audit of Holiday Inn's records to begin

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — A state-authorized audit of the Collinsville Holiday Inn's records is set to begin this week.

State Treasurer Patrick Quinn has asked the firm of Arthur Andersen and Co. to handle the financial review. Andersen will focus on cash flow and expenditures.

Though Collinsville hotel owners must permit the state audit, Quinn still can't begin loan-default proceedings, a Chicago judge has ruled.

Circuit Court Judge Monica Reynolds said Tuesday that the state's loan contract with the Collinsville Holiday Inn and two other hotels allows the treasurer to review finances. Quinn has said owners' private audits have several problems. Attorneys for both sides met in Chicago for the first of what could be many hearings over whether owners defaulted on loans. Collinsville owners owe $18.6 million on their loan.

At issue Tuesday was a lawsuit filed by hotel owners to prevent Quinn from declaring a default on loans. Several motions also were debated during the two-hour hearing, including one to allow Quinn to review hotel audits.

Reynolds agreed to take arguments under advisement and asked attorneys to return June 23 for a "status hearing," during which a ruling may be made. A previous ruling by Reynolds had put a temporary restraining order on Quinn's intentions to begin defaulting hotel loans in Collinsville and Springfield. The order is still in effect. After the restraining order was issued, the Illinois Attorney General's Office filed a motion to prevent hotel owners' law firm, Winston and Strawn of Chicago, from representing the hotels because of a conflict of interest. Reynolds didn't rule on this motion.

Winston and Strawn had represented American National Bank and Trust of Chicago when the bank handled the three state loans. Quinn has switched this trustee responsibility to Bank One of Springfield. Quinn said a conflict also exists because former Gov. James Thompson works for Winston and Strawn.

"Obviously, we would have preferred to know the results of the lawsuit, but we were satisfied with the hearing," said David Vaught, director of investments for Quinn. Quinn has said Collinsville and Springfield hotels violated 1991 refinancing agreements. The contract states that the yearly audits must allow the treasurer to rely on the findings for legal review. The owners' 1991 audits instead said the state could not rely on the findings.

The controversial and lenient refinancing contract, initiated by former Treasurer Jerry Cosentino and former Gov. Thompson, allows hotel owners to miss quarterly loan payments if they spend more than they earn.

Collinsville owners have met only one payment since the refinancing in January 1991. Quinn's aides have said that the Collinsville Holiday Inn has been the most unreliable of three hotels that received the state loans.

Bi-State expanding information service

Don't miss the bus.

With new weekend hours for the Bi-State Development Agency's transit information service, weekend bus travelers can get information about bus schedules, routes, fares and passes.

Bi-State will offer information between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in addition to regular weekday hours between 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. The phone number is 271-2345.

When calling, customers should be as precise as possible about their plans. Callers can ask for a free timetable and a route map.

The new service was made possible by special funding from St. Louis County as part of a program to provide better public transportation services for county residents. Because transit information is open to all, the entire region benefits.

"There has always been a need for weekend transit information service, but for budgetary reasons, we had to eliminate it a number of years ago," said John K. Leary Jr., Bi-State executive director. "And we are very pleased that the county has helped us to reinstate it."

Transit information answers more than 1 million telephone requests each year.

Weather hurts planting

Erratic weather patterns have taken a toll on early planting efforts in Southern Illinois, says a crops expert from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale's College of Agriculture.

Mild weather in February and March sent farmers to the fields "ahead of schedule," according to Edward C. Varsa, associate professor of plant and soil science at SIUC.

"The mild temperatures in February and March coupled with below-average rainfall allowed field work early this year," he said.

But the head start didn't last long. Cold temperatures in late April slowed early planting efforts. And acreage that was once ahead of schedule is now behind schedule.

According to the state, only 15 percent of the corn had been planted in Illinois as of April 26. Last year at that time about 25 percent was in the ground. Varsa says warmer, drier weather should help farmers get back on track.

"Corn that has been planted early basically remains dormant in the field until temperatures climb," Varsa said. "So April's cool spell has likely eliminated an early harvest."

"The weather also gave corn a slowed growth mode, and as a result, much of the newly emerging corn looks very poor — yellow from temperature stress."

Centennial tickets on sale

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Nine local women are vying to become the "First Lady" of the Glen Carbon centennial. And to take the honor, the winning "lady" must sell the most tickets to the centennial's show, "Glen Carbon 100."

Patricia Reeves, Sandy Ethington, Shirley Campbell, Lisa Evans, Rita Hackethal, Marlene Kuitjohann, Betty Oberlo, Renee Stephenson and Shelia Lucas are all contestants. The contestants began selling advance tickets for the show last week and will continue through June 15.

"Glen Carbon 100" is the centennial's 90-minute show. Some 200 actors will be in the performance, which highlights the village's history. The show will be performed at 9 each night June 16-18 at the Edwardsville Sports Complex on Center Grove Road.

Live musical entertainment will precede the nightly show, and fireworks will conclude each evening.

By buying tickets in advance, those attending the show can "vote" for their favorite candidate and save money in the process. Advance ticket coupons, available only from the contestants, cost $3 each. These coupons may be exchanged for a $4 adult general admission ticket or two $2 children's tickets. With an additional $1, the coupons can also be exchanged for a $5 reserved section seat. Reserved seating is $3 for both adults and children.

Each coupon is worth 1,000 votes to the contestant who sells it. Beginning June 8, advance ticket coupons may be exchanged at either the Centennial headquarters store located in Cottonwood Mall or at the gate during the show's nightly performances.

The contestants are also selling patron tickets, for $10 each. Those who buy patron tickets by May 29 can have their name or the name of their business printed in the official souvenir program. Names of those who buy patron tickets after that date will not appear in the program. Patron tickets are worth 7,500 votes to the contestant who sells them.

The First Lady will be crowned at 9 p.m. June 13.

All advance tickets can be purchased from any of the contestants or by calling Phyllis Shelton at the Centennial Headquarters store at 692-0792.

Braun's campaign

"I think those of us who supported Al in the primary — and many of us in this room — are included — need to unify behind Carol Moseley Braun," said U.S. Rep. Dick Durbin. "We have a tough race ahead of us, but it's a race we can win."

"I have known Carol for a number of years," he added. "She has developed a reputation as a fighter. Those who have served with her in the General Assembly know she would never back away from a tough issue."

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello also stressed the need for downstate Democrats to unite behind Braun. And Costello also passed along a message from Dixon.

"He said for me to tell everyone in this room, everyone in Madison and St. Clair counties and everyone in this state, that no one will vote here for Carol Moseley Braun in this state than Al Dixon," Costello said.

Party Chairman Bellicoff of Madison County and Bob Sprague of St. Clair County both said before Braun's arrival — 45 minutes before noon — that they were confident she would do her best to represent the downstate areas, even though she is from Chicago.

Bellicoff said Braun has pledged to be as responsive to the needs of Southern Illinois as was Dixon.

"She's indicated that she'll represent the whole state, including Southern Illinois, and work with all of us," Sprague said. "And I think she can get it."

Braun, who if elected will be the first black woman in the United States Senate, used change as a theme of her brief remarks. And she talked of the need to create a "multi-racial, multi-cultural, gender-balanced type of tag-team that can win in Southern Illinois."

"People in this state are ready for change," she said. "People in this country are ready for change. They're seeing where these failed policies of the last 10 years have brought us."

"I think the people are ready for some honesty," she said. "They're ready for some straight talk and some plain talk in government."

After her appearance in Collinsville, Braun went on to Granite City where she toured Granite City Steel and talked with steel workers.

"We are willing to compete, on a level playing field," he said. "Toothman said that stopping foreign countries from dumping cheap steel into the U.S. market is a growing problem for the American steel industry and that the federal administration should address that problem specifically."

Costello said his legislation would urge the administration to go back to the bargaining table and negotiate an agreement with foreign steel producers.

He cited a need to replace the voluntary restraint agreements, which were signed with 19 other countries during the Reagan administration and later extended to 1992 under the Bush administration.

"The VRAs sought to ensure that foreign countries did not subsidize the steel sold to American firms. The goal was to block them from selling steel at below-market prices, undercutting U.S. steel producers. The agreements also set quotas on tonnage each country sold abroad, based on a percentage of the total U.S. market."

David Phelps of the American Iron and Steel Institute in Washington said the issue of subsidies is the main reason progress in the talks has halted. He said the countries have consistently exported less than their quotas to the U.S.

"The talks broke down (in Uruguay) because everyone agreed to limit subsidies except for the subsidies they wanted. Our negotiators, very wisely, have refused to back off from their position," he said.

Phelps favors multilateral steel agreements over the old voluntary system because, he said, MSAs come closer to "true free trade" on the international market, eliminating subsidies and tariffs.

"(For) major countries (like Canada), the quotas (imposed through the VRAs) don't have much effect on big steel ships," he said.

Phelps said the U.S. steel industry has modernized "in some cases cruel ways" to compete more efficiently on the international market.

He said this modernization has come in the form of layoffs, shutdowns of inefficient plants and other cost reductions.

"Right now, U.S. steel is very productive," Phelps said. "Last year, U.S. steel exported six billion tons. In 1987, it was less than one billion tons."

"Our problem is that other countries have closed their markets to us, with subsidies. We can't afford to compete (with foreign steel producers), where we don't have to make a profit to sell their product."

In the past, he said, when the Commerce Department has identified foreign sellers dumping subsidized steel into this country, it had the option of fining companies that imported the steel or imposing sanctions on countries selling the steel.

Costello said the Commerce Department has balked on enforcing trade laws against dumping of cheap steel into this country. "They have not taken swift action," he said.

Costello said his resolution would urge the Bush administration to use those options to enforce current laws.

Meanwhile, six leading steel-makers, including National Steel, said they are preparing to file unfair-trade claims against foreign steel-makers to stop "massive" steel dumping.

The announcement was made by National, LTV, Bethlehem, USX, Armco and Inland at the annual meeting of the National Iron and Steel Institute on Wednesday in Washington.

Citing the domestic steel industry's $2.2 billion losses in 1991, Joseph F. Todd Jr. said, "We believe that we are breaking the laws of the United States."

Claims will be filed with the International Trade Commission to fight imports of subsidized steel, galvanized and plate steel. Countries targeted will not be named until the filing.

Frank W. Luerssen, Inland Steel chairman, said, "While the domestic industry has invested more than $22 billion over the past decade to modernize its facilities, foreign steel producers have received more than $100 billion in subsidies from their governments over the past 12 years and continue to dump products in the market."

option would be to vote to express (its) displeasure at a member's actions or behavior."

pose of the facility as "recovering precious metals," said that might be why he misunderstood the purpose of the plant.

He said that, if the purpose of the plant had been fully explained to him, he would not have voted for it.

Partney, however, said he had "no idea" how he would have voted if he had had all the information he now thinks he needed to decide the issue.

"I don't think I had the information I needed, but that doesn't make (Eticam) bad."

"It could very well end up being an asset to the community," Partney said. "I just don't know."

•Eticam

ability under the IEPA criteria was presented at the 1989 public hearing and the study was on file at the City Clerk's Office, Partney said he was unaware of the criteria until he got a letter from the IEPA announcing the latest hearing.

The letter stated the proposed Eticam site would not be considered at the IEPA hearing because the site was the responsibility of the city.

"After seeing what we had certified, I realized there is no way I feel qualified to make that kind of certification based on what I knew," Partney said. "And I'm not sure, even after looking at the study, that we have enough information now to make that kind of decision."

Partney and fellow aldermen Judy Whitaker and Dan Brown came under attack for comments attributed to them in a Press-Record/Journal article May 24 concerning their misgivings about the ordinance granting Eticam permission for the site. The three said they were unaware the ordinance was certifying the safety of the site.

Alderman Casmer Skubish said the article indicated the City Council "was somehow misled" by Eticam and said he, for one, was well aware of what he was doing and was satisfied that the City Council was provided with all the necessary information to make the decision.

Each of the three aldermen said they were only speaking for themselves and were not speaking for any other member of the City Council.

Brown, a candidate for mayor, sarcastically said at the council meeting that "if I had all the years of experience on the City Council that Alderman Skubish has, I would feel more qualified to certify it meets these technical standards."

He said he remembered hearing nothing at the hearing or at the meeting to lead him to believe Eticam was planning to operate a hazardous-wastewater treatment plant.

"I think this was something put in front of us at the last minute and we were told to vote for it," Noeth said. "...I never threaten people. That I don't do. I might call and say, 'You're doing a nice job.' But I have never made a threat."

Noeth said he "seemingly had some sort of conflict" with Walmesley and said it is true he didn't always go along with Walmesley's ideas.

"When the ghosts of the Walmesley administration are all gone, I think we will have a very united board," Noeth said. "Any time someone is in place a long time they make ghosts and Walmesley had some. I hope he does well (in Moline) and is able to leave his ghosts behind him."

Other than a vote of censure, Walmesley said he knows of no action the school board could take against any other board member.

"I don't believe a member could be forced to resign or that they could call for a recall election," Walmesley said. "Basically, (the board's) only

Elna Hoover

Elna M. (Mortenson) Hoover, 84, of Granite City died at 3:55 p.m. Thursday, May 28, 1992, at her residence.

Mrs. Hoover was born June 20, 1907, in St. Louis and resided in Granite City for most of her life. Director of servicing for 35 years with Mercantile Mortgage Co., she retired in 1972.

She was a member and elder of First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Old Six Mile Historical Society, Travelers Abroad and American Association of Retired Persons.

Mrs. Hoover was past president of the Women's Division of the Real Estate Board of Greater St. Louis and past president of the Soroptimists of Metro East.

Survivors include one daughter, Mary Earls of Granite City, five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She was preceded in death by a son, Carl Hoover, and her parents, Carl and Mary (Whiteside) Mortenson.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at Mercer Mortuary, Granite City, with the Rev. Dr. Lewis Trotter officiating. Burial was at Sunset Hill Memorial Estates near Edwardsville.

Memorials are suggested for the First Presbyterian Church of Granite City.

No large-item

pickup in Nameoki

There will be no large-item trash pickup in Nameoki Township tomorrow, Lee Adams, highway commissioner, announced Friday.

The pickup is regularly scheduled for the first Monday of each month, but was canceled in May when the township's highway department workers went on strike.

Adams said no agreement was reached with the striking highway workers Friday, so he was forced to cancel the service for another month.

He said that, if an agreement is reached with the highway department workers in June, the next large-item pickup will be Monday, July 6.

Channel 2 making it a 'three-horse race'

There are lots of ways to look at the recent Nielsen ratings in the St. Louis TV market. But all the local affiliated stations can look at the recent numbers with some satisfaction — and some fear.

What could they possibly be afraid of at Channel 5, you might ask. Well, KSDK-TV has been one of the most successful stations in the country over the last few years, absolutely dominating the ratings in this, a major market. But while the station still can claim leadership throughout its local programming, its overall performance is down a bit.

For instance, in the critically important 10 p.m. newscast spot, while the station's margin over Channel 4 remains about the same as it was last May, the audience for both newscasts has decreased. Channel 5's audience is down 7 percent from last May; Channel 4's audience is down 6 percent. The big gainer is Channel 2, where the audience has increased 31 percent in a year. But that, too, as we shall see, may be less than meets the eye.

The numbers (10 p.m. news, Monday through Friday, April 22 through May 20): Channel 5, 20 rating, 32 share; Channel 4, 16 rating, 25 share; Channel 2, 11 rating, 17 share.

(As always, rating indicates the percentage of households in the market watching a particular program; share indicates the percentage of homes using television watching a particular program.)

So, while Channel 2's program may be closer to second place than it has been for years, it is still significantly behind.

And, while Channel 5's lead is still substantial, there are fewer people watching the newscast which creates an interesting problem for the sales department.

And while Channel 4 draws a substantial audience, the station does not seem to be closing in on first place.

These conclusions are actually the continuation of trends which have existed for at least two years.

Incidentally, I have compared May '92 with May '91 — not with February '92, the most recent previous rating period because there are substantial differences in viewing habits with the seasons of the year and because the televising of the Winter Olympics on CBS (Channel 4) tended to distort the February ratings.

Channel 2 News Director Bill Berra seemed to be pleased at his department's progress, although he must, by now, have decided that getting out of third place in the market may take longer than folks at his station have hoped.

"I am extremely happy with the ratings," he said. "I think we're making it a three-horse race."

Anchor Teams at Channel 2 What may turn out to be more important to Berra's operation over the long haul, however, is the new anchor lineup he recently announced.

The addition of veteran anchor

Dick Ford to the mix at Channel 2 is possibly a mixed blessing. Berra finds himself with more capable anchors than he really needs — and, worst of all, from his point-of-view — he finds himself having to make accommodations to get Ford into the lineup.

The Channel 2 solution makes Ford a co-anchor on all three major newscasts — 5, 6 and 10 p.m. — with co-anchor Dana King at 5 and 10 and with Don Marsh at 6. That means Marsh, who has been with Channel 2 through good times and bad since 1971, takes what looks like a demotion.

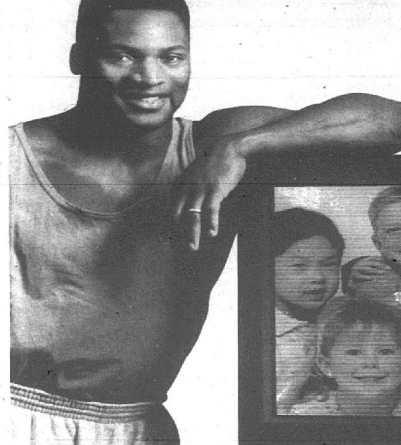

Unquestionably the finest reporter in the market, Marsh took over as a co-anchor on the 10 p.m. newscast a couple of years ago when the station was at one of its lowest points. He has, obviously, been a major factor in the station's return to respectability, and enjoys a reputation as a "class act."

The changes also shift Donn Johnson, another long-time Channel 2 stalwart who has become a solid anchor, from the 5 p.m. news to early mornings and middays.

From my point of view, it's a shame someone could not come up with a creative way to keep the major players more involved. But, as someone pointed out, "They didn't pay Ford all that money to keep him on the bench."

Ian MacBryde is an independent video producer and former television executive.

Warrior baseball team takes care of Flyers, regional opener in 5 innings

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

The regular season was good, but maybe the Warrior baseball team is saving the really intimidating stuff for post-season play.

One of the biggest and most enthusiastic crowds of the year watched Thursday at Varsity Field as Granite City blasted East St. Louis 11-1 for its first five-inning win of the season.

The first-round regional win moved the Warriors (22-8) into the Belleville West Regional semifinals Saturday against Collinsville. The winner will play the Belleville West-East winner at 4 p.m. Monday for the championship and a berth in the Granite City Sectional next weekend.

"I didn't know if our kids could play in front of so many people," said coach Rob Stegmeier.

"We had a bunch of kids come out from school for a little while and they were enthusiastic. I noticed a lot of college kids who had played here came back to watch. That can't hurt."

The enthusiasm rubbed off as the second-seeded Warriors made quick work of the seventh-seeded Flyers, who finished the year at 8-5. They got two in the first and four more in the second, then finished East Side off with four in the fifth. Leading the offensive charge was designated hitter Drake Marshall, who had three hits, scored two runs and drove in two from the No. 9 spot.

It's been a rough spring for Marshall, but there was always the feeling he would be heard from again.

"That's why I keep throwing him in there," said Stegmeier. "Drake's attitude has really been good the last week. It's a

GC soccer sectional's final four ready; Lady Warriors blank WR

By Dave Whaley

And then there were four.

The odds weren't very high against Granite City, Collinsville, Springfield and Alton making up the semifinalists in the Granite City Girls Soccer Sectional. All four won quarterfinal matches easily Thursday to set up the predicted scenario.

The Lady Warriors (16-3-1) got two goals each from senior Amanda Witter and junior Suzanne Stuart in rolling to a 2-0 win over Wood River at Benbow Field. Witter added an assist and junior Ann Logan had two assists. Next up was Saturday's 5:00 p.m. game at Memorial Stadium against Alton, which blanked Springfield Griffin 4-0 on Thursday.

It's the same matchups as a year ago. Granite City beat Alton 2-0 before Springfield surprised Collinsville 3-1. The Senators are back again after beating Quincy 4-0 on Thursday. The Lady Kahoks upended Rochester 3-1 in the other quarterfinal. Springfield and Collinsville will play approximately 30 minutes after the conclusion of the Granite City-Alton match.

"We did most of the things we wanted to today," said coach Gene Baker after Thursday's game. (See SOCCER, Page 4B)

Carmody eliminated at state meet

John Carmody of Granite City lost two of three matches Thursday in the IHSA tennis tournament in Arlington Heights and was eliminated.

Carmody, a junior who placed fourth in the Granite City Sectional last weekend to qualify for state, was defeated 3-6, 3-6 by Jim Brown of Bloomington in the first round and went into the consolation bracket.

He beat Champaign Centennial's Willie Wong 6-4, 6-3, but was eliminated after a 1-6, 4-6 loss to Quincy's Brian McDowell.

Results from the IHSA boys state track meet will appear in Wednesday's Journal.

Senior Larry Curry of the Warriors was competing in the Class AA discus. He won the area sectional last weekend with a throw of 359-8. Alphonso Brandon (long jump, 110 high hurdles), Robert Weathers (100 and 200 meters), Cernyn Macon (triple jump) and two relay teams (4x100 and 4x200) were competing for Madison in the Class A meet. The Trojans won the Red Bud Sectional last weekend.

Softball team ousted by Civic Memorial, 9-2

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

The first time the Lady Warrior softball team and Civic Memorial met this year, Granite City made a respectable showing before bowing 4-3 in nine innings.

The Eagles showed no respect and little mercy in knocking the Lady Warriors out of the regional 9-2 at home on Thursday.

Top-seeded Civic Memorial never gave the No. 9 Lady Warriors (5-17) a chance to think about an upset as they took a 9-0 lead before giving up two runs in the top of the seventh.

Lefty Yetter dominated on the mound as she fanned 11 and only allowed four hits and two walks. "You're not going to win when you have 11 strikeouts," said Lady Warrior coach John Hutchings. "We couldn't do anything at the plate. The girls weren't mentally up for this one."

Jill Becker and Bobbi Rhoades provided the offensive support for the Eagles. Both had two hits and two RBIs. CM had seven hits, but also capitalized on four Granite City errors.

"They're an awfully quick team and we weren't able to keep them off the bases," said Hutchings. "There were some plays we should have made, but we didn't and they capitalized."

The Eagles scored once in the first, and added three more in the second to take a 4-0 lead and begin the avalanche. Losing pitcher Mia Puhse held them in check in the third, but CM scored two in the fourth, one in the fifth and capped it off with two more in the sixth.

Granite City loaded the bases in the seventh and scored its two runs. Karen Sykes scored on a passed ball and Terri Buster drove in Dawn Bazzell with a single. It was much too little and much too late to make a game of it.

Tiffany Winters had two of the Lady Warriors' four hits. "I was hoping it would be a little closer, but we made too many mental mistakes to keep ourselves in the game," said Hutchings. "The biggest keys were that they threw out two of our players trying to steal and we struck out 11 times. We might not have been as confident as we should have been."

"Bowling is a Perfect Game At GRANITE BOWL"

Betty Wilkins and Laura Crompton

"We always have a good time at Granite Bowl. The staff is friendly and accommodating. The lanes are well maintained and they keep it modernized, like with Accuscore."

Laura started bowling only a couple years ago when her military husband was stationed in Florida. She bowled a 215 game a couple months ago. Betty has bowled for 15 years, has had several 200 games, but confessor her average slipped a little this year because of a toe injury.

win. "Amanda dominated the whole field at times. This was one of her best games. She's in a new position and helping out a lot with the defense as well."

The Lady Warriors outshot the Oilers 29-0. Wood River had improved quite a bit since early in the season, but Granite City beat them by the same score they had in the season's first week.

"They moved the ball well, and their coach (Margaret Mullen) has her act together much more than other people have here in the past," said Baker.

But it didn't matter to Granite City, which has outshot its opponents 65-0 and outscored them 18-0 in two sectional games. Stuart, who now has five goals on the year, opened the scoring 15 minutes into the game as she bent Oiler goalie Beth Baggett with a shot to the short side from the left wing. Freshman Holly Farnsworth got the assist.

Witter scored the prettiest goal of the game three minutes later. Junior Tammy Dutko beat one defender on right wing and sent a waist-high pass across the goalmouth. Witter bent and headed it perfectly past Baggett. Junior Shawn Odum took a crossing pass from freshman Karra Gauen early in the second quarter and again beat Baggett to the short side for a 3-0 lead.

Stuart and junior Michelle Knox sandwiched goals around Witter's 12th tally of the season in the third quarter. Logan assisted on the Stuart and Witter goals, while Witter assisted on Knox's goal.

"Alton will again be a challenge," said Baker, although the Red Wings have never beaten the Lady Warriors despite the presence the last four years of high-scoring twins Camie and Karra Bechtold. "We shut them out (2-0) the last time, but it took maybe our best effort of the year."

new season and I would like everything in the past to be forgotten. We want to go to the state tournament and he can help us get there."

Ben Hicks will help, too. The junior righthander improved to 6-0 with four innings of three-hit pitching. He struck out six.

"That was the best stuff Ben has had in a long time," said Stegemeier. "We got him out after the fourth inning so he's available for an inning or so Saturday. And he could be available Monday."

Joe Rieser (8-1) was to start Saturday's game, and Stegemeier said Marshall will likely start on the mound Monday if the Warriors get that far. It would have been nice for Marshall to pitch more than one inning Thursday, but the Warrior bats took care of that in the bottom of the fifth.

They pounded out six hits against reliever Demarco

Slaughter. Marshall doubled in a run, then Jason Maxfield and Bobby Wilson singled in the 10th and 11th runs to bring about the 10-run rule.

"I told Don Cobb (home plate umpire) that I might start sending my pitchers up to bat," said Stegemeier. "I wanted Drake to pitch three innings, but you can't tell your guys to stop swinging. Everybody came through."

on Wednesday — each contributed two hits to the 13-hit attack. Les Nunes was on base three more times in the leadoff spot, scored two runs and had a two-run single which broke the game open in the second.

"This was a young East St. Louis team," said Stegemeier. "It's important to get the early lead on a team like that and not let them think they might have a chance. Our enthusiasm on the bench was good and we took charge right away."

Membership Chairman Juanita Williams, left, welcomes new member Marion Cavins.

Guest speaker Susan Parr of Madison County Mental Health, left, is introduced by Juanita Williams, the chairman for the evening.

BPW holds monthly meeting

The Gateway Business and Professional Women's Organization held its monthly meeting March 25 at Brenda's Restaurant.

Juanita Williams, membership chairman, introduced Susan Parr from Madison County Mental Health Services as the speaker for the evening.

Parr enlightened the members on the different programs at Mental Health Services. She is the prevention supervisor for them and her job requires providing services dealing with reality, self-support-self-esteem and guidance for all ages, but mainly teen-agers. Dealing with their problems, brings you to focus on their parents and home life, she said.

Self-esteem seems to be the first important step; once this has begun to rebuild, the other steps become easier.

This seems to be a pattern with everyone, because they are expected to be Mr. or Ms. Wonderful and when they are not, they allow people to make them feel inferior, tell them how bad they did something, then they feel guilty. Parr said, The fact of the matter is, with as many roles as we play today, we are constantly cramming, cramming more into such a short time, making it almost impossible to get everything done.

Parr said we are then constantly saying we should have done this, we should have done that, or let other people say we should have done this or that.

Parr emphasized: "We should not feel guilty about saying 'no' when we are tired and have stretched ourselves to the limit, for if you don't, the first thing you know, you have your self-esteem down."

Self-esteem comes from mothers, teachers, families, friends, church, all whom tell you good things, but they also tell you bad things, or negative things. Statistics show from ages 0 to 4 self-esteem is very high, 7th grade only 70 percent, 8th grade only 60 percent, high school only 20 percent and most of the females only 18 percent.

As Eleanor Roosevelt once said: "Don't allow anyone to make you feel inferior, without your consent." Look at reality and say, "This is all I can do, then don't try to be the superwoman, helping friends constantly work and your children. What you need to do, is to do something for yourself, as well as for others. Take your 12 hours a day, six outside and six inside."

Parr encouraged the members and guest to take a risk, "make changes" and at the end of the day find something positive about yourself. This will build your self-esteem, she said.

Membership chairman Juanita Williams inducted Marian Cavins into membership. She is employed at Century 21—Dove as a sales manager, married and enjoys reading. Parr and members welcomed her into the club with presentation of a red rose by Williams.

The collect was given by Marian Cavins and the Pledge of Allegiance by Shirley Rapoff, with Ruth Nicholas being the recipient of the Traveling Friendship Basket.

How Murphy Sports keeps scoring new customers year after year.

"Without the yellow pages, we couldn't survive," Mike Murphy of Murphy Sports.

The actual ad is one of the biggest in the retail sporting goods section. Why? Plain and simple—so customers can't miss it.

Research proves that larger display ads outperform smaller ads (see the chart). Larger ads are more efficient too, with greater impact as well as more space at a proportionally lower cost.

Murphy Sports uses the space to list its specialized products. Orders of these products make up a good chunk of Murphy Sports' business, and 75% of these come in by phone.

Yes, Murphy Sports has tried other advertising in the past. But according to Mike Murphy, "nothing was as successful as tangible" as the yellow pages. And today, the yellow pages is the sole advertising medium used by this prosperous company.

Whether your business is retail, roofing, restaurants, or any other, the yellow pages can give you a major league advantage. And you can count on DonTech, publishers of the Ameritech PagesPlus directory, to help you determine what will work best for you. Just talk to your DonTech representative.

The bottom line is, you simply can't make a better investment than a yellow pages ad. That is, if you're playing the game to win.

Advertising is a proven sales tool that returns your original investment many times over. One of the most effective kinds of advertising you can choose is the yellow pages. The yellow pages is always working, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. It's distributed to every home, every business with a telephone. Who uses it? An impressive 90% of all adults. Keep in mind, too, that people rarely browse through the yellow pages. They turn to it when they're ready to buy: studies show that 87.7% of yellow pages users either bought or were going to buy. In short, a yellow pages ad means business.

Attention Deficit group meeting planned here Tuesday

The Outpatient Service area of the Kettler Center and Children with Attention Deficit Disorder (CHADD) of Madison/St. Clair counties will welcome John Grimaud, M.D., of the Psychiatric Center of Creve Coeur Ltd., as guest speaker Tuesday, June 2, from 8 to 9 p.m.

The group meets in the Wisman Room on the first floor of the West Wing at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., Granite City.

The talk will focus on improving a child's self-esteem and explaining attention deficit hyperactivity disorder to the child.

He will speak during the second half of the ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder) Parents Support Group meeting, which will begin with a business meeting and general discussion from 7 to 7:50 p.m. Newcomers are welcome to both sessions.

It is estimated that ADHD occurs in 3 to 5 percent of children," said Dr. Teresa White, director of the Kettler Center's Outpatient

Services and consultant to the CHADD group. "That adds up to two million school-aged children with the disorder."

"Within Madison and St. Clair counties, there may be as many as 4,000 school-aged children with ADHD. It is one of the most common reasons for referrals to outpatient mental health clinics."

The ADHD Parent Support Group is intended to educate participants about ADHD and provide them with support and information on community resources. It meets on the first Tuesday of each month.

Persons may call Dr. White at 798-3608 for more information.

OH MY ACHING CORNS!

A phrase so commonly used by those suffering needlessly from painful corns. Although trimming them affords temporary relief, within 1-2 months regrowth of the corn occurs along with the pain and discomfort. The recurrence is due to the underlying calcium deposit causing excessive pressure where the skin responds by building up that corn tissue. In almost all instances the corn can be permanently removed by an in office procedure requiring little or no time off work. There is no need to suffer any longer - consult the physicians and surgeons at the FOOT HEALTH CENTERS.

Summer student reading program a must

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

After school lets out in the summer, many kids never pick up a book again until school starts up in the fall.

Do not let that happen with your child.

Be sure your child is exposed to a wide variety of books and opportunities for reading. If possible, spend some time reading aloud to him. Even children who already can read well will benefit from read-aloud sessions with an adult.

Here are some new children's fiction books to look for this summer at a library or bookstore.

Some of the oldest fiction around has been repackaged this year for the consumption of modern youth. "Classic Myths to Read Aloud" by William F. Russell (Crown Publishers, $9) offers 24 classic Greek and Roman myths about such well-known heroes and heroines as Damon and Pythias, Pygmalion, Jason, Democles, Helen of Troy and Ulysses.

The myths are divided into two listening levels and have valuable extra information for the adults doing the reading.

Reading sessions using selections from this book would be an excellent addition to any summer schedule.

The book, "The Problem with Puffin" by Florence Parry Heide (Mulberry Books, $3.95) can be filed under the heading of "reverse psychology." This clever tongue-in-cheek story of a boy who won't watch television and wants to read all day, will provide your child with a few laughs.

In children's fiction, the story of the untamed orphan child finally finding a home and love is classic. "Bearstone" by Will Hobbs (Avon Camelot Books, $3.50) is a well-written version of this genre about a young Indian boy.

If your child is still in the picture book phase, there are some new "classics" available.

"Three Little Pigs and the Big Bad Wolf" by Glen Rounds (Holiday House, $14.95) is a delightfully illustrated version of an old folk tale.

Superheroes come in all shapes and sizes these days, but here is one your child has not heard of yet. "The Amazing Adventures of Teddy Tum Tum" by Gillian Brees and Tony Langham (Arcade Publishing, $11.95) outlines the rough and tumble life of the bravest bear in the world. This bear tackles raging rivers and wild animals, all without leaving the security of his own backyard.

Author Shirley Hughes has the ability to take even the most ordinary of events and look at them through the eyes of a child. In "An Evening At Alfie's" (Mulberry Books, $3.95) she examines the ensuing excitement when a pipe bursts while Mom and Dad are out for the evening. Not exactly the stuff of great adventures, but not your run-of-the-mill evening either.

Oxford University Press has introduced 10 paperback books of poems for children that are fun, small and inexpensive. Each book is $2.50 and covers a subject of interest to children. Dragons, ghosts, sports, horses and snow are some of the topics represented in this "Pocket Poetry" series.

Another adventurer is created by humorist James Stevenson in "Rolling Rose" (Greenwillow Books, $13.95). This baby explorer takes off in her walker to see the world, but when it starts raining she heads back home.

Even babies should not be forgotten this summer. "Rabbit and Chicken" (Tambourine Books, $4.95) by Norbert Landis are the stars of four new beautiful board books for ages 1 and 2.

Jane Cosgrove is a former teacher and the mother of two. "If you have any questions or have a specific topic you would like to see covered in this column, please write to: ABC's For Parents, St. Louis News Service, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131.

Evie Marsala

8-year-old picked for TV commercial

Evie LeeAnne Marsala, 8-year-old second grader at Frohardt and daughter of Frank and Sherry Marsala of Granite City, received a part in a television commercial for St. Clare's Hospital in Alton.

The scene was staged in front of the hospital April 10. Evie had been through two auditions before getting the part of a little girl who anxiously waits for her mother, outside the hospital entrance for her father, who will be coming home after a long illness.

The commercial was produced by Butler Productions and will be televised the end of May.

Free blood pressure screenings offered here Monday

St. Elizabeth Medical Center Cardiopulmonary Rehab registered nurses will offer free blood pressure screenings from 1 to 2 p.m. Monday, June 1, at the new west-mart store off of Illinois Route 3 near West Pontoon Road.

Nearly 3.5 million people in Illinois have an increased risk of illness or death due to hypertension or high blood pressure. An estimated one million are not aware of their condition, and another 600,000 are aware of, but not controlling, their condition, an SEMC spokesman said.

Untreated high blood pressure can lead to heart attack, stroke or kidney disease.

A blood pressure reading has two numbers, 120/80, for example. The top number is the systolic pressure, measuring the blood flowing in an artery as the heart beats. The bottom number is the diastolic pressure, the force of blood while the heart is resting.

Generally, a reading of 120/80 is within normal range. A reading of 160/95 or higher may indicate high blood pressure, depending on age and health condition. Blood pressure may vary during the day, depending on how active one has been. More than one reading may be necessary to determine what is normal for an individual.

High blood pressure is often called the silent killer. Anyone can have high blood pressure, but it tends to run in families and is more common among men.

Women may develop hypertension while pregnant or taking birth control pills. Blacks are twice as prone to high blood pressure. People who are short and heavy or overweight are also in greater danger.

Some possible symptoms of high blood pressure are: breathlessness; nosebleeds with no apparent cause; severe localized headaches that occur early in the morning and are accompanied by nausea; and dizziness.

"These symptoms do not mean you have hypertension," said Bev Motil, RN, Cardiopulmonary Rehab coordinator. "But you should have your blood pressure checked and see your doctor."

"High blood pressure is treated in a number of ways. Stopping smoking, weight reduction, exercise and relaxation may help. In some cases, reducing salt, caffeine and fat in the diet, or medication may be needed. Only your doctor can tell what is right for you."

"Treating high blood pressure is a lifelong process," Motil said.

We're Sorry!

The Rubbermaid® 6-position folding high back chair featured in the Rubbermaid® Estate 2000 7-pc. resin set and sold separately for $29 each on the front cover of this week's Summer Living Guide, will not be available due to the manufacturer's inability to ship. Although rain checks cannot be issued for this item, we will substitute a similar model chair for the same price.

The toddler rocker advertised for $29.99 on page 7 will not be available due to the manufacturer's inability to ship. Although rain checks cannot be issued for this item, we will substitute a Jumbo Und rocker in white or maple finish for an even lower price of $4.99.

We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause you.
